Imprint / Provider Identification

The following provides mandatory data concerning the provider of this website, obligations with regard to data protection, as well as other important legal references involving the Internet site www.laszlogboros.com. The site is originated from academic, translational and clinical research at the University of California Los Angeles (UCLA) Department of Pediatrics, the Los Angeles Biomedical Research Institutes (LABIOMED) and the Clinical and Translational Science Institute at UCLA. The site provides scientific and educational interpretations of peer reviewed, published original contributions in medicinal biochemistry and physiology related to Deutenomics. The site serves as the core educational facility partially funded under Los Angeles Biomedical Research Institute’s educational project 2002790000 to Laszlo G. Boros. Related course topics may also be announced by the Office of Educational Opportunities (OEO) at LABIOMED and UCLA. Such scientific and translational interpretations may publically be also viewed in published and/or archived formats at MedlinePlus, which is an online information service, produced by the United States National Library of Medicine, among other search engines involving the medical literature. Views and data interpretations are solely that of Laszlo G. Boros and do not necessarily reflect those of the Food and Drug Administration, LABIOMED, UCLA or any other academic and Government institution elsewhere. The statements on www.laszlogboros.com have not been evaluated by the Food and Drug Administration and none of the products and/or services, including announcements, verbal statements during scientific consultations and teaching sessions are intended to diagnose, treat, cure, or prevent any disease. No statements, written or verbal, released in connection with services offered by www.laszlogboros.com replace, alter or modify advice provided by licensed care providers, whose recommendations should guide all treatments initiated or established by licensed medical and/or practitioner personnel.
